AUSTRALIA Faced With COLOSSAL TASK

VICTORY FOR ENGLAND PRACTICALLY A CERTAINTY

FINGLETON BOWLED BY LARWOOD FOR NO RUNS

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

ADELAIDE, January 18.

LARWOOD adopted his off-theory, when he opened the bowling with Allen against the Australians in their second innings. After three runs had been scored, Fingleton was bowled by Larwood, when he attempted to turn one from him—3 for 1. After nine runs had been added to the score Ponsford attempted to cut the first ball of Larwood's fourth over and was splendidly taken by Jardine at backward point—12 for 2. Bradman batted splendidly for seventy-three minutes, showing a masterly all-round display and in which time he scored 66 runs which included ten fours and one six. Verity was severely punished by him, but was finally caught and bowled by the same bowler—100 for 3.

McCabe fell a victim to Allen after scoring 7 runs, when he was caught by Leyland near the boundary—116 for 4. Larwood was cheered early in the afternoon when he assumed the off-theory, but was booed when he restored to the leg-theory in his seventh over.

Woodfull played a stolid innings having scored 38 runs not out at the close of play, while Richardson, his partner, had not broken his "duck."

ENGLAND LEAD BY 411 WITH FOUR AUSTRALIANS OUT

There were 20,000 present when play was resumed this morning in unsettled weather. Rain fell in the early morning, but it left the pitch unaffected, though it is bound to leave its impression as the game continues.

Jardine kept Paynter in reserve and sent out Verity with Ames (18) to resume the English innings.

Bradman completed his over, after having claimed Hammond's wicket with the first ball of the last over of yesterday's play, and Wall and O'Reilly were again thrown into the attack, but they could not hinder the third hundred from being hoisted after 431 minutes' batting.

Grimmett was then given a turn with the ball, but he was unable to tempt Verity with well-pitched up deliveries, and the partnership realised 50 runs in 64 minutes and the 350 was signalled after 492 minutes' batting.

Double Bowling Change.

Woodfull made a double change at 255, Bradman and Grimmett being again given an opportunity. This was the signal to open out on the part of Ames and Verity, the former hitting Bradman through the covers to the boundary to reach his 50 after 149 minutes. Verity played a dogged innings, very fine leg shots being the feature of his knock, and the pair were together at the luncheon interval with the score at 385 for 6, having put on 89 runs in an invaluable partnership. Ames was 64 and Verity 38 at lunch.

Hard Task for Australia.

At the luncheon interval England were 504 runs in the lead with four wickets to fall, and Australia will have to break all fourth innings records for the Adelaide ground if they are to force a victory.

Ames added only one run after lunch, being bowled by O'Reilly with a "snorter" on the off stump 234-7-60. He and Verity had added 98 runs for the seventh wicket in 110 minutes. He hit six boundaries in an innings which lasted 189 minutes.

Verity left at 395, getting his leg in front of one from O'Reilly after scoring 40 in 115 minutes. Larwood was caught in the long field at 408, and Voce was bowled by O'Reilly at 418. Paynter was forced to have a runner as he limped badly after hitting each ball.

JAPANESE WORKERS OUT OF HAND.

SINGER SEWING MACHINE WORKS ATTACKED

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

Tokyo, Jan. 18.

A CLIMAX to the prolonged dispute arising from dissatisfaction with the company's agents regarding the terms of contract was witnessed when a mob of 300 Japanese attacked the Yokohama branch of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. and destroyed nearly all movable property and valuable records.

Police intervened after most of the damage had been done arresting over a hundred of the rioters. The foreign staff were out at lunch, thus they escaped the attack and injury, but several Japanese were injured.

The American ambassador visited Count Uchida and requested an immediate investigation into the Singer raid and adequate police protection for American life and property in the future.

Court Uchida readily complied. The Singer representative has estimated the loss is likely to reach several hundred thousand yen.

Three of Singer's loyal Japanese employees and four Japanese guards were seriously injured.

One hundred and thirty-eight of the rioters were arrested.

OBJECTION TO LEG THEORY BOWLING

AUSTRALIA CABLES TO M.C.C.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

ADELAIDE, Jan. 18.

THE Australian Board of Control has cabled to the Marylebone Cricket Club on the subject of the leg-theory controversy as follows:—

"Body-line bowling has been assumed to such proportions as to be a menace to the best interests of the game making the protection of the body by batsmen the main consideration, and causing intensely bitter feeling between players as well as injury. Our opinion is it is unimportant and unless it is stopped immediately is likely to upset the friendly relations existing between Australia and England."

REMONETISATION OF SILVER

BILL INTRODUCED TO HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

A BILL aiming at the remonetisation of silver has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Mr. Steagall, the chairman of the Banking Committee.

The Bill provides that the Secretary of the Treasury Department shall immediately purchase silver in the open market at current prices to the value of $1,000,000,000 and thereafter, each month, he shall purchase one-twentieth of the amount of the previous month's purchase.

The bill also provides for the creation of silver bullion in the United States, Alaska, and the Philippines. Payment for the silver, under the Bill, would take the form of silver certificates, which would be declared legal tender.

Train Travellers Greeted by Gramophone

BROADCAST MUSIC

TO PREVENT BOREDOM

THE RADIO BOYS

KNOW WEEK-END PASSENGERS LIKE DANCE TUNES

Good afternoon. Greetings from the L.N.E.R. We hope you will enjoy the journey and the entertainment provided for you, which by the way, will start with...

This is not a sentence from a speech at a railway staff Christmas party.

It is the first of a set of several gramophone records which have been specially made for the L.N.E.R. as an experiment to provide pleasant commentary in between wireless broadcasts, for which sets have been installed in some of the trains.

The experiment is being tried on two London-Edinburgh expresses, and will be eventually in operation on all long-distance trains.

This is what happens to the long-distance traveller when he boards the train at King's Cross.

Seventeen-year-old Robert Lee, one of the L.N.E.R.'s two "Radio Boys"—he is the attendant who looks after the wireless broadcast—discreetly approaches.

"Would you like a pair of headphones, sir?"

The passenger puts them on, not expecting to hear anything until the train has passed through all the tunnels in the Northern suburbs and has reached a point outside London where there is no interference with the B.B.C. broadcast.

As the express draws out of the terminus the passenger hears the greeting quoted above, and a dozen records are broadcast down the train before it reaches Potters Bar.

After Potters Bar.

After Potters Bar the B.B.C. broadcast comes through clearly, and continues until a station is approached.

Then the L.N.E.R. gramophone voice says:

"We will arrive at our next stop in five minutes' time. To those passengers who are alighting we say Good-day—we hope you have had a pleasant journey. To those who are continuing their journey with us, one moment, please."

A little later, while the train is again gathering speed, the voice says:

"Welcome to all those who have joined the train. We will now continue our programme with..."

More records are put on by young Lee while he searches the ether with his wireless receiving set to find a convenient programme acceptable to all passenger-listeners.

Sometimes, for instance, he will find that the passenger is an elderly woman who says: "Do stop this continual jazz music. Haven't you had of something?"

Young Lee diplomatically replies, "Yes, Madam, of course we have. It shall be put on directly after this one is finished."

And it is done.

gramme of British broadcasting. He was glad to learn that there was under discussion a scheme for co-operation between the B.B.C. and the industry generally for future development, both on the side of the manufacturers and the distributors.

Mr. Leslie McMichael, chairman of the Radio Manufacturers' Association, in reply, referred to the forthcoming opening of the Empire radio station. He said that tens of thousands of Britishers overseas were greatly looking forward to that event. British manufacturers in a limited way had explored the markets overseas, and consistent with trading difficulties, they would endeavour to see that Britishers there used British receivers. It was with the greatest satisfaction that they learned that the King was to address the whole of his people by wireless on Christmas Day.

In a very short time they would be sending out from Davenport round the British Empire a continuous programme and a considerable share of the home programme.

The New Rules as to Wireless on Ships

The new statutory Wireless Telegraphy Rules, which came into force on Jan. 1, 1933, have been published. The rules are made in pursuance of the Merchant Shipping (Wireless Telegraphy) Act, 1919, and the Shipping (Safety and Load Line Conventions) Act, 1932, and they embody the wireless telegraphy requirements of the International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1929.

Under the new rules, the ships which must be equipped with wireless telegraphy remain, unaltered, that is, all sea-going passenger ships, irrespective of their tonnage, and all sea-going cargo ships of 1,600 tons gross and upwards. Generally speaking, the nature of the installation to be fitted will also be the same as before, but an important new obligation is the requirement to fit a direction-finding apparatus in all passenger ships of 5,000 tons gross and upwards before Jan. 1, 1935.

Qualified Operators. One qualified operator must be carried in all ships to which the Rules apply; and in the case of ships required to keep continuous watch, additional operators (or watchers possessing the new standard of qualifications laid down by the Safety Convention) must be carried unless the ship is fitted with an auto-alarm and takes advantage of the provision of the Rules which allows continuous watch to be kept by one certificated operator and an auto alarm, provided the latter is in effective operation whenever watch by human agency is not being kept.

Other Conditions. In the case of ships required to keep continuous watch which are not fitted with an auto-alarm, the Rules require two operators (of whom one may be substituted by a watcher), if the ship's hours at sea are between eight and forty-eight, and three operators (of whom up to two may be substituted by watchers), if the hours at sea exceed forty-eight.

The old system of grading wireless operators according to their length of service has been abolished, but the chief or sole operator in all passenger ships and also in cargo ships of 3,000 tons gross or over must have had at least three months' service at sea as an operator.

The requirements of the rules as to operators and watchers do not affect the provisions as to the number or qualifications of operators or watchers which may be applicable in any particular case in pursuance of the International Radio-telegraph Convention and Regulations.

Classification of Ships. The classification of ships for the purpose of wireless telegraphy has been revised and is now based on the gross tonnage of the ship instead of on the number of persons on board. Passenger ships of 3,000 tons gross and over, and cargo ships of over 5,000 tons gross, must keep continuous watch. Passenger ships under 3,000 tons gross, and cargo ships between 3,000 and 5,000 tons gross must keep a total watch of not less than eight hours per day in four specified two-hourly periods, and cargo ships between 1,600 and 3,000 tons gross are required to keep a watch of not less than six hours per day, composed of two periods of two hours and two periods of one hour each at specified times. In the case of ships fitted with auto-alarms the rules only require that the operator shall be on watch for four specified half-hourly periods each day.

Effect on Finances. "Apart from the legal and moral side, the establishment of such clubs cannot but fail very adversely to affect the finances of our clubs and increase the difficulties of club committees in keeping club members together and retaining their support."

"A number of Union clubs have been approached by individuals and syndicates, who request facilities to be given them to exploit the club and its members by the establishment of 'Totalisator' schemes."

Mr. R. S. Chapman, secretary of the Union, told a "Morning Post" representative yesterday that attempts had been made by organisers of Totalisator clubs to obtain permission to conduct their transactions in clubs belonging to the Union, to save themselves the trouble and expense of obtaining premises elsewhere.

"A number of men may care to have a small bet now and then," (Continued on next column)

TOTE BANNED IN WORKERS CLUBS

NATIONAL WARNING TO OFFENDERS

The Executive Committee of the Working Men's Club and Institute Union, which has a membership of over 600,000 workmen, has sent a letter to each of the 2,700 affiliated clubs stating that:

"In the event of any club either establishing a 'Tote' or granting facilities to an individual or syndicate to run a 'Tote' in the club premises, such will be called upon to resign membership of the Union, or alternatively will be liable to expulsion."

"In the opinion of the Executive Committee," the letter states, "Tote" clubs are a device to evade the betting laws of the country. The legality of the betting transactions carried on in such clubs (all of course, set up for the benefit of promoting individuals) is questionable.

"But legal or not, the Union Executive is of opinion that 'Tote' clubs do not advance the ideals or sustain the traditions of club life, which the Union has always endeavoured to inculcate and uphold. On the contrary, the Executive are convinced that such clubs are a menace, destructive of everything for which decent clubs should stand."

Effect on Finances. "Apart from the legal and moral side, the establishment of such clubs cannot but fail very adversely to affect the finances of our clubs and increase the difficulties of club committees in keeping club members together and retaining their support."

"A number of Union clubs have been approached by individuals and syndicates, who request facilities to be given them to exploit the club and its members by the establishment of 'Totalisator' schemes."

FILM TRIBBY MAY LOSE HER SVENGALI

MARLENE DIETRICH TO CHANGE HER DIRECTOR

Marlene Dietrich and Josef von Sternberg the Tribby and Svengali of the screen, may part.

While von Sternberg's contract with the Paramount Company is on the point of expiry, Marlene Dietrich has two more pictures to make.

Paramount, anxious that von Sternberg shall direct his beautiful protégé in one more film, have offered to extend his contract, so that he can make "Hurricane," in which Marlene Dietrich is the star.

But von Sternberg is undecided. He has other tempting offers.

Meanwhile, Rouben Mamoulian, the Armenian director, is standing by with another Marlene Dietrich script called "Song of Songs."

If von Sternberg turns down "Hurricane," Marlene Dietrich will have to take directorial orders from Mamoulian.

And this will represent the first occasion that she has ever acted without the guidance of her German mentor and discoverer.

Von Sternberg found Marlene Dietrich playing a small part in a Berlin musical comedy. Never before had he encountered a woman so glamorous, so alluring, so mysterious.

He taught her everything. She fell under his spell. While in his company she became a new personality. Away from him she was a different woman.

They went to Hollywood together. As each of their American pictures were released, her fame became greater, and with it her debt to von Sternberg.

HERE AND THERE

The Radio Creed.

What do we believe a modern wireless set should provide? The primary requirements, according to Mr. W. T. Cocking, designer of the new "Wireless World" Monodial Super Receiver for D.C. mains operation, are:

Faithful reproduction.
High selectivity.
Large output.
Good sensitivity.

At the present time these conflicting requirements can only be satisfactorily reconciled in the superheterodyne. Unfortunately the majority of such sets are intended to operate from alternating current mains; the new version of the "Monodial" fulfils many requests from D.C. mains users who wish to construct their own receiver. It is stated that the new version has the features and performance of its popular predecessor.

Much Loved Announcer.

"The Wireless World" tells a story concerning a French radio announcer with whose voice numerous lady listeners are reported to be in love. A few evenings ago a gentleman turned up at the station and insisted on seeing the vocal Adonis. The interview was short.

"Are you really Mr. X?"

"I am veritably he."

"Thanks; that is all I wanted to know," and the visitor departed radiant. Outside he told a friend in confidence: "My wife is in love with his voice; this has made me very uneasy, but now that I have seen him I can sleep peacefully."

Stalin Speech via Rugby P.O. Station.

Land lines via Berlin and London may shortly form part of the link between Moscow and New York (writes the Washington correspondent of "The Wireless World") to enable Stalin, the Soviet dictator, to broadcast a speech to American listeners. The speech would be relayed across the Atlantic by the high power Post Office Station at Rugby.

First Greek Broadcasting Station.

"Radio-Theolonik" is the title of the first Greek broadcasting station, which will shortly begin transmissions on a wavelength of 270 metres, says "The Wireless World." Provisional programme times are from 11.45 a.m. to 12.45 p.m., and from 7.15 to 8.15 p.m. daily (G.M.T.).

Iron Radio.

A radio set plays a grim part in a French talkie now running at the "Ambassadeurs," Paris. In the last act, when the heroine is dying over the corpse of her husband, the broadcast receiver in the corner of the flat fills the apartment with her melodies—"Wireless World."

Can You

Raise Humble Fish To The Peerage?

In these days we cannot all afford the noblest fish. Outside the royal enclosure are a number of
"perfectly good" fish.

Snapper, Macao sole, bril, and white salmon, although not possessing the personality of trout, or turbot, can be beautifully dressed
in a new piquancy if you learn
this sauce.

"Sauce Dominic," which I invented during a recent tour of the West Indies, is easy to make.
For six persons buy two pounds
of fish or a two-pound fish, according to your choice of species. Have
it fillet and the bones sent home
with it.

Break up the bones into a quart
saucepan. Add a pint of hot water,
one bay leaf, and a dessertspoonful
of salt. Boil uncovered for half an hour, or until reduced to half a pint. This is your stock.

Now begin cooking the fish. Roll
the fillets up and pin them securely with cocktail sticks. Stand them up in a buttered fireproof
dish and commit to a slow oven for fifteen minutes. While this is happening return to your "Sauce Dominic."

Put three ounces of butter into a small saucepan. When melted and sizzling add two tablespoons of flour. Stir and cook the flour for a minute without browning. Pour gradually the hot stock through a strainer into the cooked flour and butter. Stir continually until of a very thick consistency.

Add to an egg yolk in a small pudding basin a wingglassful of lime juice and a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar. Stir together and add to the hot sauce. Taste,
and add salt and pepper as required. Add two teaspoons of milk, or enough to bring to a thick cream
consistency, but do not allow the sauce, which is now a rich custard
colour, to boil after adding the milk. Keep the pan hot at the side of the stove or in a saucepan of boiling water.

The fish will be cooked when the fillets have been in the oven for fifteen minutes. Sauce over just before dishing up. Garnish with a sprig of parsley and serve with creamed mashed potatoes and diced cucumber or lettuce. A lemon sole served like this leaves the Commons
for the Lords.

SOLE DUGLERE

Sole Duglère is very often met
with in restaurants, and is extremely easy to prepare (though
this may not be reason for its frequent appearance).

Put the sole in a buttered fireproof dish with a couple of table-
spoonful of finely-chopped onion,
two or three peeled and roughly-
chopped tomatoes, a little roughly-
chopped parsley, a pinch of salt,
a suspicion of pepper, and a glass
of white wine.

Poach it gently in the oven, and when it is done thicken the liquor
very slightly with a little white sauce made with fish stock, and finish it with butter, and a few drops of lemon juice before pouring it over the fish.

Curried Scallops.

Curried prawns and lobsters are always popular, but curried scallops have a delicate flavour all their own. Half stew as many scallops as you want, while you are making your very best curry sauce. When they are ready, introduce them into the sauce, cook
very slowly for an hour, and serve
them in their shells with a thin
border of rice in each.

For those with strong digestions
I can recommend the following—so long as it is not kept waiting. Butter a fireproof dish, and put into it
some fillets of halibut, brushed over with melted butter, salted, peppered, and sprinkled with a squeeze of lemon juice. Bake them in the oven till they are ready, and, on serving, pour over them a Welsh Rarebit.

All food is rendered more tempting by being prettily served.

The Contented Babe

needs. It is important that a definite basis of feeding be observed,
as to go through a succession of different foods in the hope of finding "one that suits" or that "he likes" is bound to upset the digestion still more and may lead to very serious complications.

Ankoria and Allenburys are two foods which can be thoroughly recommended.

In natural feeding it is the wise
mother who avoids snacks between meals and encourages the fresh element in her diet and chews her
food very well, avoiding those large,
so-called nourishing meals that
well-meaning relatives and friends
so often press upon her.

If baby gains too fast or has indigestion, feeds should be shortened
and warm, boiled, unsweetened
water given immediately before starting.

Out of all the babies who are born
healthy a distressing number suffer
from digestive disturbances and illness owing to wrong feeding.

GENERAL PROGRESS

Let us take proper feeding first.
You would be surprised how much depends on that; not only the present and future health but the general progress and all-round contentment. Modern research has proved beyond all doubt that natural feeding is the best, and in-nearly five out of every hundred cases this is possible, provided necessary adjustments are made and anti-natal preparation is carried out.

Second to this is a properly modified mixture, containing the necessary food components in right proportion, given at blood heat and not too fast. It should approximate the natural food as nearly as possible. No night feed is given.

Should there be any digestive difficulties, special adjustments can be made to suit baby's particular

IMPORTANT FIRST YEARS

The seeds of future health are sown during those all-important first years. More babies are over-fed than under-fed; it is important to realise this.

Over-feeding may continue for a considerable time with no apparent harm, but the reaction when it does come may be so severe as almost to cost the little one his life.

The baby who is allowed to become over-fat is likely to be slow
in general development, and his activities will be impeded, while his power of resistance is definitely lowered, and he will probably take any cold or cough that comes his way, and may even develop rickets.
He will also be fretful and restless
instead of happy and contented.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Chinese lanterns, when used for a children's party, should have a quantity of salt packed round the candle-holder. The weight will be of assistance in keeping the lanterns steady, and, in case of fire, would help to smother the flames.

Curtain rings can be sewn on in this labour-saving way, writes a Daily Mail correspondent. Turn down the hem of the curtain to the desired depth, and at intervals
mark the position of the rings.
Thread a ring on a piece of narrow tape about 1 1/2 in. long, tuck under the hem, and machine as near to the edge as possible. The rings
are thus sewn on with the one stitching of the hem.

Dog hairs can be removed quickly from coats, chairs, or cushions
by putting on an old kid glove and brushing the surface lightly with
the hand.

Handles of such kitchen implements as tin-openers, apple-corers,
and so on, which made of wood,
often get dark and shabby from frequent washing. Dip the handles in good enamel, and allow to dry hard. They will then look smart and wash easily.

Kippers are usually ruined by being cooked for 8 to 10 minutes in a frying pan. Instead, soak for 10 minutes in cold water and then pour on really boiling water, and let soak for 5 seconds. Then place on a hot grased grill only until thoroughly heated (probably 1 to 1 1/2 minutes), and send very hot to table.

Liver left-overs can be converted into an excellent sandwich filling
by rubbing them through a wire
sieve and moistening with lemon
juice, melted butter, and seasonings. The proportions are left to individual taste. A slice of bacon
can be included, treated in the same way.

Marrow usually leaves a little water in the dish in which it is served. To obviate this, put a thick half-slice of bread at the bottom of the dish and place the cooked marrow on top. The bread absorbs all the moisture, and can afterwards be used for making bread sauce.

Raffia bound round the lid-handles of aluminium saucepans will save many burns when lids have constantly to be removed in the course of cooking.

Wool that has been knitted up
can be made to look fresh and new if unravelled, wound round a thin
board or stout cardboard and ironed
under a damp cloth.

THE KEYNOTE

Warmth of body is essential, but
this does not mean coddling in air-less rooms or under pram hood and unsuitable coverings. Free moving air is essential and warm porous
clothing in three even layers.

Long woolly leggings, coat and gloves are necessary, and a hot-
water bottle may be needed in extreme cold for a tiny baby out of doors. Here, again, right feeding is the keynote, for the baby who is rightly fed has a good circulation and is able to be "out in frost
and snow, yet keep as warm as toast."

The Fashion of the Dish A la Florentine

We are all accustomed to the various accepted fashions of preparing dishes of different kinds,
but it may be useful to have a little catalogue of the foods which can be prepared in these fashions.
Let us take a la Florentine first,
mostly assorted with spinach and
cheese as garnishes.

The first course in which we find it is the egg course. Poached eggs and œufs mollets (peeled sort-boiled eggs) are thus served on a bed
of spinach cooked in butter—or sometimes a purée of spinach—and masked with a cheese sauce and browned quickly under the grill.

An Omelette à la Florentine is made by incorporating with the eggs before they are cooked some blanched spinach cooked in butter.
A little cheese can be grated over
the omelette when it is cooked,
though this is not essential.

Eggs sur le plat become "Florentine" if the bottom of the plat
is spread with a purée of spinach
spinkled with grated cheese.

Next, for the first course, oysters
can be cooked by first poaching
them lightly, then laying them in a coquille on a bed of spinach cooked in butter, covering them with cheese sauce, sprinkling this with more cheese and browning it. Soles

can be treated in the same way.

Meats and Sweets.
In the meat course saucettes of lamb or mutton and tournedos of beef are served a la Florentine
when grilled—and arranged on a bed of spinach, masked with Chateaubriand sauce, and garnished with fried croquettes of smolena.

Braised sweetbreads are served in
this fashion on a bed of spinach
with a grace of the reduced liquor in which they have cooked. Chicken breasts can also be served on a bed of spinach and masked with a cheese sauce. Artichokes can be presented similarly.

There is an American salad called
"Florentine," which is made
with Cos lettuce, dice of raw celery, green pimientos cut in rounds,
blanched spinach and cream cut up,
moistened with vinaigrette sauce.

A Crème Florentine is a crétame chilled and decorated with whipped cream flavoured with kirsch, over which some chopped
pistachio nuts have been sprinkled.
And lastly, a Bombe Florentine is a Bombe praline (that is, with chopped almonds), clothed with a raspberry ice.

STUFFED VEAL

This is a useful dish for two or three people, who have met together to appreciate the hostess'
cooking.

Get a slice of fillet of veal large enough for your requirements about an inch thick. Cut it in half, leaving two slices each half an inch thick. On one of these lay some thin slices of cooked ham, as lean
as possible, and spread on this a stuffing made with the fat of the ham, mushrooms and parsley all chopped together and cooked in some tomato sauce and bound with flour and butter. Place the other slice on the top, and tie the two together with string.

Now brown the sandwich on both sides in butter, and let it simmer slowly for half an hour. At the end of that time pour in some more tomato sauce, and cook for half an hour longer. When it is done untie it, strain the sauce over it, and garnish with little baked tomatoes
and grilled mushrooms.

MERINGUES WITH- OUT CREAM

Sometimes when visitors arrive unexpectedly we find ourselves with some meringues hidden away safely in a tin, but no cream to fill them with!

Here is a very useful and delicious hint which will successfully solve the problem for you. Keep a few ounces of shelled walnuts in the house: it is a good idea to have some chopped and sieved ready for use in an emergency.

Take three ounces of butter or margarine, whichever you have most of—beat it until it gets white. Add four ounces of sieved icing sugar
and a few drops of good coffee essence together with the pounded walnuts. Beat this all to a stiff cream; see that the coffee flavour
is really strong.

Spread the walnut butter cream
between the two halves of the meringues, and give your guests a really delicious surprise. You will not have any apologies for not having any cream
then!

Health Hint

Brazil Nuts. Give great muscular strength. Indigestible if taken after a meal of meat. Eat alone or with fruit or vegetables.

CONLONPICKPOCKETS IN EVENING DRESSTHEFTS IN SHANGHAI ON
NEW YEAR'S EVECABARETS AND CLUBS
VISITEDShanghai: Wearing dinner jac-kets and evening gowns, foreign pickpockets of both sexes made a vigorous attack on Shanghai's revellers on New Year's Eve and made several hauls. Clubs, cabarets and hotels, practically anywhere a crowd
had gathered to celebrate, received their share of these unwelcome
visitors.Police precautions at certain places where people welcomed in the new year resulted in the moving out of shady characters. There are apparently some 60 foreign pick-
pockets, many of them Russian,
who ply their trade in Shanghai, Hongkong, Dairen, Harbin and other places, who are known to the police.These pickpockets travel from one port to the next, spending a few weeks or months in each. In Shanghai on New Year's Eve their most definite attack on respectable
places of entertainment yet recorded, took place.

In Dinner Jackets.

In one club three men lost money
out of their pockets, and a woman
had something stolen from her handbag. It is believed that two men and two women carried out the thefts.Such a party approached a member in the bar shortly after the new year had arrived, crowded around him and wished him a happy New Year. A few minutes later he realized that some banknotes in his pocket had gone.The men and one woman, on whom suspicion had fallen, managed to get away from the club without being caught, but one woman was detained but in view of lack of evidence was allowed to go. She was of gypsy type.Both the men were wearing dinner jackets and the two women
were dressed in evening gowns.

Among the Cabarets.

At a western district cabaret the biggest haul that has come to light
took place, where a visitor carrying American banknotes to the value of $300 was victimized. At least two others lost money, the total haul being in the neighbourhood of $2,500. In a hotel near the Bund a woman lost $300.Nothing was reported as having been lost in two French Concession cabarets, thanks to the vigilance
of their staffs and of detectives. In one of them the floor manager recognised a party of two men and a woman, and immediately requested them to leave the premises. One of the two received the same request.
In another cabaret detectives were responsible for the moving on of more than one man and one woman
whose presence was considered undesirable.There were probably several more minor cases which have not come to light. With the various places of entertainment thoroughly crowded,
pickpockets who attended them
were in their element, especially on a night when most people attempt to be carefree. Shanghai revellers
have a new menace to combat.

"SOB SISTER"
AT THE KING'STRIUMPH FOR JAMES DUNN
AND LINDA WATKINSTwo young players who have made good in Hollywood in an unusually large way head the large and brilliant cast of the Fox production, "Sob Sister," which is now delighting the audiences at the King's Theatre.They are James Dunn and Linda Watkins.Six months ago, Dunn was an ambitious but "unknown" New Yorker, taking screen tests at the New York studios of the various large film companies. Then Fox Films asked him to take a test and then the first train out of New York, Hollywood bound. In his pocket was a Fox contract and at the Hollywood station was waiting the leading role in "Bad Girl."As Sally Eilers' boy friend in that picture, Dunn carved a line
in screen history and a niche for himself in stardom.The other star is Linda Watkins,
perhaps not so well known to screen fans at this time, but who is destined for the heights on the silver screen. Miss Watkins, who makes her film debut in the title role of "Sob Sister," is a Bostonian by birth but a New Yorker
by training, having lived in the metropolis since the age of four weeks. On the Broadway stage she scored heavily in such hits as "The Ivory Door," "Sweet Stranger,"
"Midnight," and "June Moon."She is blonde, blue-eyed and slender,
and is reputed to have one of the best dramatic voices in Hollywood.Two News-Hunters.
"Sob Sister" derives its title
from the appellation tagged on to those feminine members of the press
who write up the heart throbs of the days news. But in its true sense it is not a newspaper story.
It is rather a delightful and thrilling romance of two newsmen, who
deal with their own honest
emotions and heart aches instead of the hardened, cynical attitudes
with which they are themselves
when on the chase for news.Edwin Burke, who wrote the dialogue for "Bad Girl," adapted this story for the screen and his work is just as human and masterful as that of the previous film.
Alfred Santal, who directed "Daddy Long Legs," directed the cast,
which in addition to Dunn and Miss Watkins includes Minna Gombell,
also of "Bad Girl" fame,
Molly O'Day, Howard Phillips and
George E. Stone in featured roles."YOUNG AMERICA"
HOW SPENCER TRACEY
MADE GOODThree years ago an actor and his wife were seated in an obscure little motion picture theatre in New York City, watching the swift parade of horsemen riding through mesquite clumps as the film unrolled before them. Seventy-five dollars a week doesn't go far with an actor in Manhattan, and "Westerns" formed the principal diversion of these two.Neither had ever been west of Wisconsin, and the actor gazed with some envy at the carefree cowboys
on the screen and wondered if he would ever win enough success on Broadway to enable him to afford a vacation in the sage-brush. It didn't seem probable. He had played in stock in various cities,
and had been with the Theatre Guild for some time, yet he had never had the opportunity to display the talents he was sure he possessed.
Most of his roles were "heavy,"
and a stage heavy seldom attains
prominence.To-day that same actor, Spencer Tracey, is one of the most talked-of screen players in Hollywood. With his growing army of admirers from his work in "Up The River,"
"Quick Millions," "She Wanted
A Millionaire" and "Sky Devils,"
and with his recent triumph in
"Disorderly Conduct," he has firmly clinched his right to film
fame.Although he hasn't as yet satisfied his early ambition to play a cowboy, he still has hopes—and
meanwhile gets practice in the gentle art of sticking to a horse's back by going in for polo.Tracey is shy to a degree, hates
premieres and previews for fear
people will "gush" about him, is natural and unaffected with everyone, and in general is what Main Street calls "regular." And in those difficult half-hero, half-villain roles he plays so well, he finds the justification of both his talents and his hopes.In his latest vehicle, "Young America," Tracey has a new type of role—that of a grouchy druggist who dislikes youngsters and who raises plenty of objections when his wife brings a boy into their home. Darryl Zanuck, Rerly Mercer, Ralph Bellamy and two juvenile players, Tommy Conlon and Raymond Borzage, have the other prominent roles in the production, which Frank Borzage directed. The picture comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday next.NOVEL PARTY UP IN CLOUDSDEPICTED IN "SKYSCRAPER" SOULSAccustomed as Hollywood may be to "high life," some sort of record was broken at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios during the filming of "Skyscraper Souls," now playing at the Queen's Theatre with Warren William and Maureen
O'Sullivan in featured roles.It was during the filming of a party atop of New York's tallest building. All the excitement of the film occurs in and about a 102-story
skyscraper.As contrived by Director Edgar Selwyn, everything was done to give the players taking part in the party the feeling of being more than 1,000 feet above the street level.
Manhattan's unrivaled skyline,
with all its towers, roofs and spires,
loomed in the distance, far down
below, in Times Square, electric signs flashed on and off. The tops of the Chrysler, the Chanin and the Woolworth buildings could be seen
from their eerie place of revelry,
which was shut off from the rest of the world by a protective parapet.Host at this party was Warren
William, as the Dave Dwight of

St Stephen's Girls' College

LADY POLLOCK DISTRIBUTES PRIZES AND CERTIFICATES

BISHOP HALL ON WOMEN'S POWER IN THE WORLD

The annual speech day and prize-giving at the St. Stephen's Girls' College was held yesterday. The Right Rev. Bishop Hall was in the chair.

There was a very large gathering of parents, pupils and friends in the school hall including, Lady Pollock; Miss A. S. Atkins, the Principal; Miss Cheung, Headmistress of the Fairlie School; Miss Griffin; Miss Pope; Mrs. Finnigan; Rev. C. L. Blanchet; Mr. G. P. de Martin, Director of Education, and Dr. Andrew Cheung.

A very enjoyable concert preceded the prize-giving. The quality of the singing and the artistic and varied nature of the performance were outstanding. The programme included a very cleverly presented scene from "The Taming of the Shrew" by the schoolgirls of the Upper Classes, and a sketch, "The Middle of the Night" given by the Lower classes. The children impersonating fairy dolls, being very good indeed. The Chinese lantern dance to a Chinese refrain was both colourful and graceful while the pianoforte solo by Miss Lai Chung-Yue was exceptionally well rendered.

A YEAR OF STEADY WORK

THE REPORT

Miss Atkins read the School report in English repeated in Chinese by Mrs. Cheung.

It stated:—In thanking you all for coming here this afternoon I take this opportunity of welcoming our new Bishop as Chairman of our Council. It is a great pleasure to have him with us to-day and I am sure the School will benefit much by his wise guidance and advice. We are very grateful to Lady Pollock for so kindly showing her interest in us by coming to distribute our cups and certificates. She has watched our development for many years and in her we know we have a real friend.

There have been no outstanding events in this year's work, so I have to present a report of uneventful but steady progress. There has been very little sickness in the school and the numbers have exceeded previous years, our highest total on the roll this year being 283. Last term we had 42 boarders.

Staff Changes.

At the beginning of June, Mrs. Cooper went home to England and Miss Pope took her place in Fairlie. Miss Griffin coming back to the Hostel where Miss Pope had been acting Warden. Unfortunately Mrs. Cooper is not coming back. We are very sorry to lose her, but as she is going to be married our sorrow is tempered with joy and our good wishes for her happiness go out to her. At the end of the year Miss Chiu left us after 14 years' service. She had been away through illness, the greater part of the year and her work has been taken by Mrs. Teng. As both she and Mrs. Cooper worked in the Kindergarten, I would like here to thank Mrs. Carpenter who has very kindly given us help and advice in the Kindergarten and in the training of the teachers, with excellent results. In the report received from the Government Inspector he says, "The Kindergarten Department is well conducted. I was very pleased with their handwork, singing and reading." Miss O'Hoy has left us to be married and in her stead we welcome Miss Young So Min, another "old girl." I also have to record with regret the resignation of Mr. Lo Kwan Sheung. For 21 years he has guided successive generations of students through the intricacies of the Chinese language and literature and we are deeply grateful to him. He has always been a very loyal member of the Staff, taking an interest in all departments of the school's life and we hope he will long enjoy his well-earned rest. We are fortunate in having Mr. Yung to carry on his work.

Examinations.

This year again the results of the Examinations of the Trinity College of Music, London, were excellent. All the candidates, (24 in number) passed, six gaining Honours, and two past students passed the Practical Part of the Teacher's Diploma. In the University Local Examinations 4 girls matriculated, 5 passed Senior, while out of 22 entries 17 Junior candidates passed, with 4 distinctions in Needlework, 4 in Music, and 1 in Biblical Knowledge.

Games are becoming increasingly popular. We have played 2 netball matches against other schools and our team has worked so well together that it has never yet been beaten. I am not sure, however, that this is entirely a matter for congratulation as we want to learn how to lose as well as how to win. In the Form Tournament Form III won the Championship. During the summer months we had regular launch parties to Sai Wan, but though quite a number can swim, we would like to see many more wanting to learn.

Visits have been made to the Observatory at Kowloon; also to the Waterworks at Pokfulam where the girls were much interested in watching the process of chlorinating and purifying the water.

At the beginning of the year the two top forms took a course of First Aid in connection with the St. John's Ambulance Association, and all passed the examination.

Old Girls.

Our Old Girls have done well. Three, Cheng Mei Hing, Ada Leung and Choy Oi Chee took their degrees last week at the University; eleven are at present in training as nurses, one in the Netherlands Hospital and ten in the Government Civil Hospital. We are able to keep in touch with them through the weekly visits of the girls with a member of the Staff to the hospital on Sundays in order to cheer the patients with the message of God's love. Two girls go each week and on Christmas Eve about 30 girls volunteered to come and sing carols through the wards. This is part of the work undertaken by our Wa Kwoong branch of the student Y.W.C.A. The weekly prayer meetings have also been carried on and have been well attended. These are entirely voluntary and are conducted by the students. The members of the Wa Kwoong have now for over six years run a Free School for a month during their summer holidays and then on half-holidays in the term time. The school flourished this year with sixty pupils.

International Party.

At the beginning of November the students organised and carried out an International Party, to which children of many different countries came. Ten different nationalities were represented and our guests kindly took part in the entertainment, singing, reciting, or telling a story in their own tongue, or doing something characteristic of their land. It was an experiment in International Friendship well worth repeating and the hymn sung at the end "All people that on earth do dwell, sing to the Lord with cheerful voice" well expressed our feelings.

During the year there have been three baptisms and two confirmations and a great many have joined preparation classes.

"The Whole School."

Our Sale of Work this year, though not financially so successful as last year, produced over $3,000 which we are very glad to be able to distribute in these days of distress and need. It is a great co-operative effort and one which gives the whole school from the tiniest to the Head Girl a common interest and a common desire to work for their poorer brothers and sisters and to share their own wealth with their lack. In "the whole school" included also firstly the staff, without whose constant cheerful co-operation none of these things could happen; nor could the Inspector say of us as he did in his Report, "The school is very efficient," to them, both Chinese and British, I extend my heartfelt thanks. Secondly, our Old Girls. Our Alumnae Association is quite flourishing. We have 72 members of whom 21 are overseas. The Alumnae always undertake to look after the tea at the Sale and their help is much appreciated in every way.

Their loyalty and affection to the school is very cheering and I would like to remind any who are present here to-day that whenever they come back they are always welcome, for this is their second home.

At the close of the school year, that is at the end of last term, we acted on this platform a short Christmas Play. That play to my mind sums up what we are trying to do in this place. In the final scene, children from all countries around the world followed the Wise Men and the Shepherds with their offerings to the Babe at Bethlehem. We want all our work and games and social service here to be an offering to God our Father. Who taught us through Christ and through the wise men of China, our common Brotherhood in one Family, that He may bless it to the service of China and to the furtherance of International goodwill.

THE BISHOP'S ADDRESS

In rising to ask Lady Pollock to distribute the prizes the Right Rev. Bishop Hall said that after hearing the school report it was unnecessary for him to say anything except to congratulate Miss Atkins and the school staff on the very fine work during the past year.

The Bishop referred to the magnificent service the school had rendered to all and said that he was proud to be able to congratulate them on behalf of the Church and its Community.

Bishop Hall remarked that during the past six years in England it had been his privilege to be able to visit daily the homes in the industrial part of England. He could say with very great conviction that in every home the level of the family never rose that of the Mother, proving that it was the women who ruled the world and that in a sense man was at her mercy.

The speaker said that he was glad that we were able to repay China for this very beautiful island by giving her some of the things which God had given us and that one of vital importance was that of the Christian woman. "And that is why I regard the school and its work of greatest importance," concluded the Bishop.

LADY POLLOCK'S CONGRATULATIONS

Lady Pollock addressing the girls said she had known the school for a great number of years and had always looked forward with pleasurable anticipation to Speech Day. It was not the programme, nor what was done by the School, but the atmosphere which was apparent everywhere. She said she enjoyed being met at the door with smiles of welcome and greeted with such friendliness. She thought the secret of it all was that on the top story of the building there was a Quiet Room where anyone could go for a quiet time, and for the solving of problems with the help of God. It was from this source that the spirit of service issued as it shown in the three items Miss Atkins mentioned in her report, (1) the Free School for poor children, (2) the weekly visits to the Hospital, and (3) the raising of over $3,000.00 for charitable purposes by the Sale of Work, which must have meant infinite trouble, work and patience on the part of everybody concerned.

She congratulated Miss Atkins and the staff on the arrangements of to-day and said it gave her very great pleasure to present the cups and certificates to so many of the students.

Leung Kong Chue, a tiny member of the Kindergarten then presented Lady Pollock with a bouquet of sweet peas on behalf of the School.

The prizes which were distributed by Lady Pollock were awarded as follows:—

She was a tireless worker on behalf of the M.C.L. and other local charities, and, from the inception of the Kowloon Union Church, had been a member of the Committee, also being a past President of the Women's Guild.

Much sympathy will be felt with the husband and family in their bereavement. Among the children are Mrs. David Purves, jr. of Shanghai and Mr. Forsyth, junior.

The funeral took place yesterday at the remains being interred at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley. The Rev. Dr. E. L. Allen assisted by Rev. Frank Short officiated at the graveside.

The principal mourners were Mr. W. Forsyth (husband) and Mr. W. Forsyth, jr. (son) and Messrs. D. J. and L. Purves.

Many wreaths were laid on the grave including one from the Kowloon Union Church Women's Guild, The Institution of Shipbuilders and Engineers, The Kowloon Dock Recreation Club and the Kowloon Bowling Green Club.

The members of the staff of Kowloon Dock raised a subscription with which they bought a wreath, the substantial balance being made available for any charity the family of Mrs. Forsyth might name.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

GOOD RECEPTION FOR PHILHARMONIC'S FIRST NIGHT

Most of us were interested and intrigued when it was announced that the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society had decided to produce "The Fountain of Youth." Many of us had never heard of it—very few of us indeed had seen it in London. What is this Fountain of Youth? We asked and the Philharmonic Society kept its own counsel—so naturally we went to see for ourselves. We found "The Fountain of Youth" to be a comic opera, with some very pretty music, quite amusing patter, and offering an opportunity for pretty stage-settings. The reception given on the opening night showed that the choice of piece made by the Society was warmly approved.

GOOD MUSIC AND AMUSING PLAY

SEVERAL GOOD PARTS

One of the things one likes about "The Fountain of Youth" is that it has several good parts of roughly equal importance, and one of the things one likes about the Philharmonic Society's production of it is that these major roles are all well taken.

It is hard to choose between Mrs. Tolley's "Daisy" and Mrs. Mathison's "Mrs. Dalebrook." The latter was probably the harder and less sympathetic though, larger part, and one's only criticism of Mrs. Dalebrook was that she did not differentiate with sufficient sharpness between her two characters, as the old woman and the young girl. It is hard of course to ask a singer to sacrifice any of her better notes, but it would have been more effective, I believe, had she sung less well in her character of the old woman and sprung a youthful voice as well as a youthful appearance on the audience after drinking at "The Fountain of Youth" and Tom Hazel, taken by P. J. Guntrip and R. Dornier. Mr. Guntrip is splendid in the way in which he grows younger and older as the play demands and looks thoroughly embarrassed in so doing. He takes his songs well, and speaks not only to his audience, but to his fellow players a thing not many amateurs succeed in doing.

Mr. Dornier has a difficult part and holds it well. A little shyness in love making and singing will no doubt be less evident at subsequent performances, and he certainly deserves the warmest applause for his singing of the by no means easy endle song at the end.

The Funny Men.

Then there are the "funny men," Mr. Bert and Mr. Labrum as "Vachery" and Mugwort. Vachery is always good and has a sense of dramatic entrance. "Mugwort" is inclined to be slow—but perhaps rapidity of speech or action would not suit the part of the melancholy sexton. Suffice it to say that both gentlemen drew a good many laughs and plenty of applause from last night's audience.

A Wicked Fellow.

Mr. W. Houston Bailey had the role of Sir Bullion Blunt, a financier who sees a way of making capital out of the Fountain of Youth. His entrance and first song were splendid but he seemed to lack life a little at subsequent appearances.

And All the Rest.

What can one say of all the rest, ladies and gentlemen of the chorus, except that they sang very well and the ladies looked very charming especially in their pretty frocks in the second act. So much depends on the chorus, and yet unless they fail to pull their weight the audience is apt to overlook that fact. Last night they most certainly did not fail in singing, though one did feel that a little more animation in appearance and better grouping would have improved the general effect.

The Ballet.

The Rose Bud Ballet is charming and Miss Winifred Henderson and her companions deserve our thanks for what was a delightful interlude of graceful, well planned dancing. One only wishes that there had been an opportunity for a second appearance.

The production was in the capable hands of Mr. S. A. Sweet and the musical direction in those of D. Smith Hill. To produce "The Fountain of Youth" must have meant a great deal of patient work for both gentlemen, but we think that they will find the reward of their efforts by glancing each night from the attractive stage to the appreciative audience.

"The Fountain of Youth" is being given again on January 10 at 4.45 p.m. and on the 20th and 21st at 9.30 p.m.

[All letters intended for publication must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not for publication, unless so desired, but as evidence of good faith.—Ed.]

THE CASE OF CHENG KWOK YAU

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

SIR,—In to-day's issue of your morning contemporary the argument is advanced on behalf of the above named "unhappy youth" as you rightly call him, that he is a product of our times. Of course he is!

So was the unhappy foki who some seven years ago was executed for killing the owner of the shop where he was employed. This foki was getting six dollars a month. A blow on the head and some few hundred dollars would be at his disposal thereby enabling him to provide his wife and children with a decent subsistence. Of course it was a chance, and he took it and he paid the penalty. He had a fair trial and was legally condemned. That I fully admit, but surely there was something to be said for a man who takes such a terrible chance and such a desperate step rather than continue to watch his wife and family undergo a process of slow but sure starvation, though perfectly legal! Anyhow, he took that chance and paid the extreme penalty. Now what I wish to ask is this: Was there any plea for mercy made or any voice of protest raised by any individual, or any institution on behalf of this unfortunate victim of circumstances? Not a bit of it! He was a poor man! He had been faced with an opportunity and a terrible temptation and he succumbed. I maintain Sir that on the ground of humanity, justice and mercy, this foki had at least as strong a claim for clemency as the unfortunate youth for whom a petition for reprieve is now being signed.

Nevertheless, I wish to say this: I regard capital punishment as a blot on our civilisation and on that ground alone I would sign the petition for reprieve. But furthermore I would like to say this also, and that is, to ask those who are responsible for this petition where they should be in the next murder case should the condemned happen to be a poverty stricken and desperate foki or coolie who has neither recanted his religion nor been provided with the means of postponing the course of the law!

A. HANSON.

REDUCTION OF RENTS

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

SIR,—May we, as an initiative Group of resident householders and Shopkeepers, foreign as well as Chinese, draw, through the columns of your valued Paper, the attention of the Authorities and all concerned to a matter of vital importance which fully warrants immediate action, and that is, the reduction by Government Legislation of all rents for private residences, Shop premises and other accommodation, by from 30 to 50 per cent., as it has already been done in other neighbouring cities, in view of a permanent all-round decline in the incomes of the population, as shown in the following.

It is common knowledge that the average income of practically the whole population, with the exception of the several huge combines owning a great number of houses in Hong Kong, and smaller house-owners, also perhaps a few Private Hotels, has decreased visibly by 30 to 40 per cent., and this decreased standard of the people's income has now definitely reached permanency. Salaries everywhere have been reduced by 10 to 30 per cent. of all Government Servants as well as of Commercial employees; Firms and Shops, even old established ones, have already, and are still more reducing their Staffs, a number have closed down, others have their mere living only, and the number of the impoverished and fully or part time unemployed shows a considerable increase. Thus it is evident that the whole of the Foreign and Chinese population finds it ever more difficult to continue to pay the present rents, as they are very perceptibly encroaching upon that narrow margin left for absolute necessities, as food, health, clothing, schooling, bus and ferry. The present day house rents averaging $50.—to 100.—for three rooms and $100.—to 150.—for four rooms flats, and shop rents averaging from $150.—to $400.—and far more, date from previous more abundant times, but are utterly out of date and hit therefore all working and trades people of the Colony very hard to-day. Other cities have promptly taken measures to stop houseowners charging too high rents, by decreasing the rents from 30 to 50 per cent. The state of affairs demands the immediate attention of the Government and all concerned, and it is

CRIMINAL SESSIONS

Armed Robber Gets Three Years

INCIDENT AT SAI TAU VILLAGE

Sentence of three years' hard labour was passed on a Chinese who was convicted at the Criminal Sessions yesterday (before Mr. Justice Wood) on a charge of robbery at Sai Tau Village.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, in outlining the case against the defendant said that Sai Tau was a walled village near Kowloon City and the house where the offence took place was at the end of a row of houses outside the village. There was a yard outside the house, a sitting room adjoining the yard and a bedroom behind the sitting room.

On December 4, there were living in this house, the complainant, his wife and an invalid woman named Tsang. At 8.30 p.m. while the family were in the sitting room preparing to have their evening meal three men entered, the accused being one of them. The first man said: "I am a policeman and I have come to search for contraband." With that he took some wires from his pocket and they bound the complainant and his wife and put them on the bed used by the invalid woman, a blanket and cotton quilt being thrown over their heads. The accused then sat on the bed.

The other two men proceeded to ransack the place. In the meantime the complainant's wife said to the accused: "Lift up the quilt a little or we will suffocate. The quilt was lifted, probably by accident, and they were able to see something of what was going on. One of the men came up and asked the complainant's wife for her keys. She gave him her keys and told the robbers what was in the various boxes which they opened. The men then went off into the bedroom, leaving the accused still sitting on the bed. After a while, the accused got impatient and shouted to his companions: "Have you finished?" There was no reply and the accused left the house, telling the complainant and his wife not to get up.

The accused walked towards the East gate of the village and as he was leaving a man, who was a friend of the complainant's was about to enter the gate. The complainant, who had jumped out of bed and had followed the accused shouted to his friend and the accused was arrested. An Indian constable who appeared on the scene took all the parties to the Police Station, where the accused was identified on the following day by the complainant's wife.

The defendant claimed at the Police Station that he was wrongly identified and in the Magistracy he had declared his innocence, pointing out that nothing was found on him.

BANISHEE PLEADS GUILTY

Law Ming Po appeared before Mr. Justice Wood charged with (1) burglary and larceny (2) larceny (3) and (4) receiving stolen goods and (5) breach of banishment order.

Defendants pleaded guilty on all counts and was sentenced to eighteen months on the first count and twelve months' hard labour on the second count, the sentences to run consecutively. On the third and fourth counts no sentence was passed and on the fifth he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment with hard labour, the sentence to run concurrently with the other sentences.

50,000 HEROIN PILLS

ANTI-PHILACY GUARD CHARGED

Following the seizure of a large number of heroin pills on board the s.s. Anhui on its arrival from Shanghai on January 6th, a Shanghai constable, who was stationed on board the ship as one of the anti-piracy guards has been arrested.

He was brought before Mr. Butters at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on a charge of being in possession of the pills.

Mr. Sparrow, A.S.P. in prosecuting, stated that the constable was in company of a coolie who was carrying a sack, when the Chief Officer of the ship stopped the latter and found five parcels which contained 50,000 heroin pills. The case was adjourned.

the purpose of this letter to call residents Associations, Tenants Shopkeepers and Firms to come forward and to request the Government to reduce rents by 30 to 50 per cent.

INITIATIVE GROUP OF FOREIGN AND CHINESE TENANTS SHOPKEEPERS AND FIRMS
Hong Kong, Jan. 17, 1933.

CANTON NOTES

The Canton Chamber of Commerce has petitioned the South-West Political Council for the cancellation of the increased tariff on imported crude oil, in order to relieve the hardships of manufacturers promoting the growth of a new industry.

At the meeting recently the South-West Political Council issued instructions to the Superintendent of Customs to enforce only the old tariff rates.

A report of the local conditions was made to the Ministry of Finance, Nanking, who had made the increased tariff.

Work in the destruction of the Nam Hung City Wall has commenced and more maloes are to be built in the district.

In the near future it is expected that highways will connect Nam Hung with Shikwan and Taiyu. A technical report of the Fukien Reconstruction Department is visiting Canton to study the reconstruction work accomplished in Kwangtung.

Mr. Chu Chi Ngi has been appointed Director of the new Bureau of Industry, to develop the industrial resources of Hainan Island. The new bureau will devote its attention first to the increase of food production on the land. Special attention will be paid to certain sub-tropical products for which Hainan is suited, such as coconuts, pine-apples, coffee, beet nuts and possibly rubber. Enquiry is being made into the prevalence of fires in the Sai Nan City, Shamshui district.

Merchants have petitioned the City Council to hold a thorough examination into the cause of the outbreaks, and they suggest that all fire-policies be registered.

At Wuchow, it is proposed to tighten up on the Japanese boycott, as a result of the attack at Shanhaiwan. Recently the anti-Japanese Society of Kwelin searched all the important firms in the city for Japanese goods.

AMOY'S NEW COMMISSIONER

Police Reforms Promised

TENANTS REDUCE RENTS!

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

AMOY, Jan. 14.—Mr. Lin Hong Hui, the newly appointed commissioner of the Public Safety Bureau of Amoy assumed office yesterday, following the resignation Mr. Lin Chin Seng, former head of the bureau. The new chief was appointed by the Provincial Government of Fukien. The oath-taking ceremony was held at the bureau and among those present were many representatives from local organizations as well as Government officials.

The new chief addressing the assembly said that many steps needed to be taken in reforming the police administration: firstly, to increase salaries; secondly, to select able and experienced officers; and thirdly, to establish a training bureau. The above reforms will be started without delay.

Owing to financial depression and business difficulties a demand for a reduction of house rent was voiced in Amoy. Recently an organization known as the "Tenants' Rent Reduction Union" was organized by tenants. The reduction demanded was 30 per cent. Tenants in the city are all agreed to this, so they paid their rentals with a 30 per cent. reduction but the landlords refused to accept. In consequence the business of collecting rent is now suspended pending a settlement. It is now learnt that a "Landlords' Union" has been also formed to protest against the reduction.

LOCAL L.T.A. SECRETARY RESIGNS

MR. C. P. F. JAMES GOES ON LEAVE

By the resignation of Mr. C.P.F. James from the secretaryship of the Hong Kong Lawn Tennis Association—a position which he has held for nearly three years—the Association in particular and the tennis public in general, have lost a valuable supporter of the game.

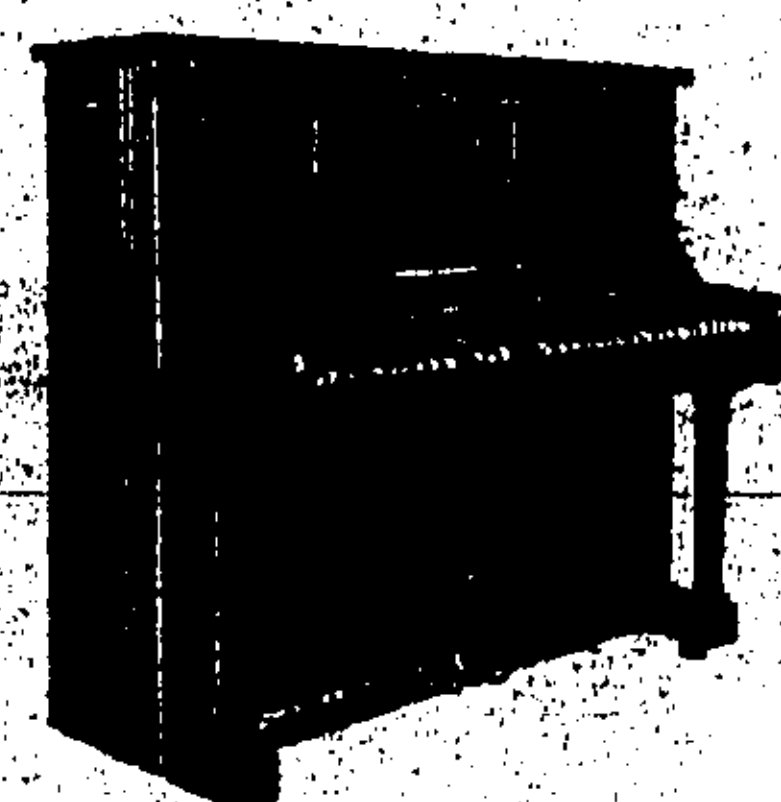

Mr. James, together with Mrs. James, who is a well-known local tennis player, and their young son, left for San Francisco on the President Wilson yesterday morning on home leave. Although he will return after five months, Mr. James intimated that he is unable to take office again.

It is understood that Mr. James, while in San Francisco, will endeavour to secure from Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the world's ladies tennis champion, who visited the Colony last year, a cup for local competition.

JAPAN REFUSES DISCUSSION OF MANCHUKUO-REGIME

COMMITTEE OF NINETEEN MAY ABANDON CONCILIATION

ASSEMBLY MUST ENDORSE LYTTON REPORT RECOMMENDATIONS

JAPAN'S REPLY TO COMMITTEE OF NINETEEN'S DRAFT PROPOSALS

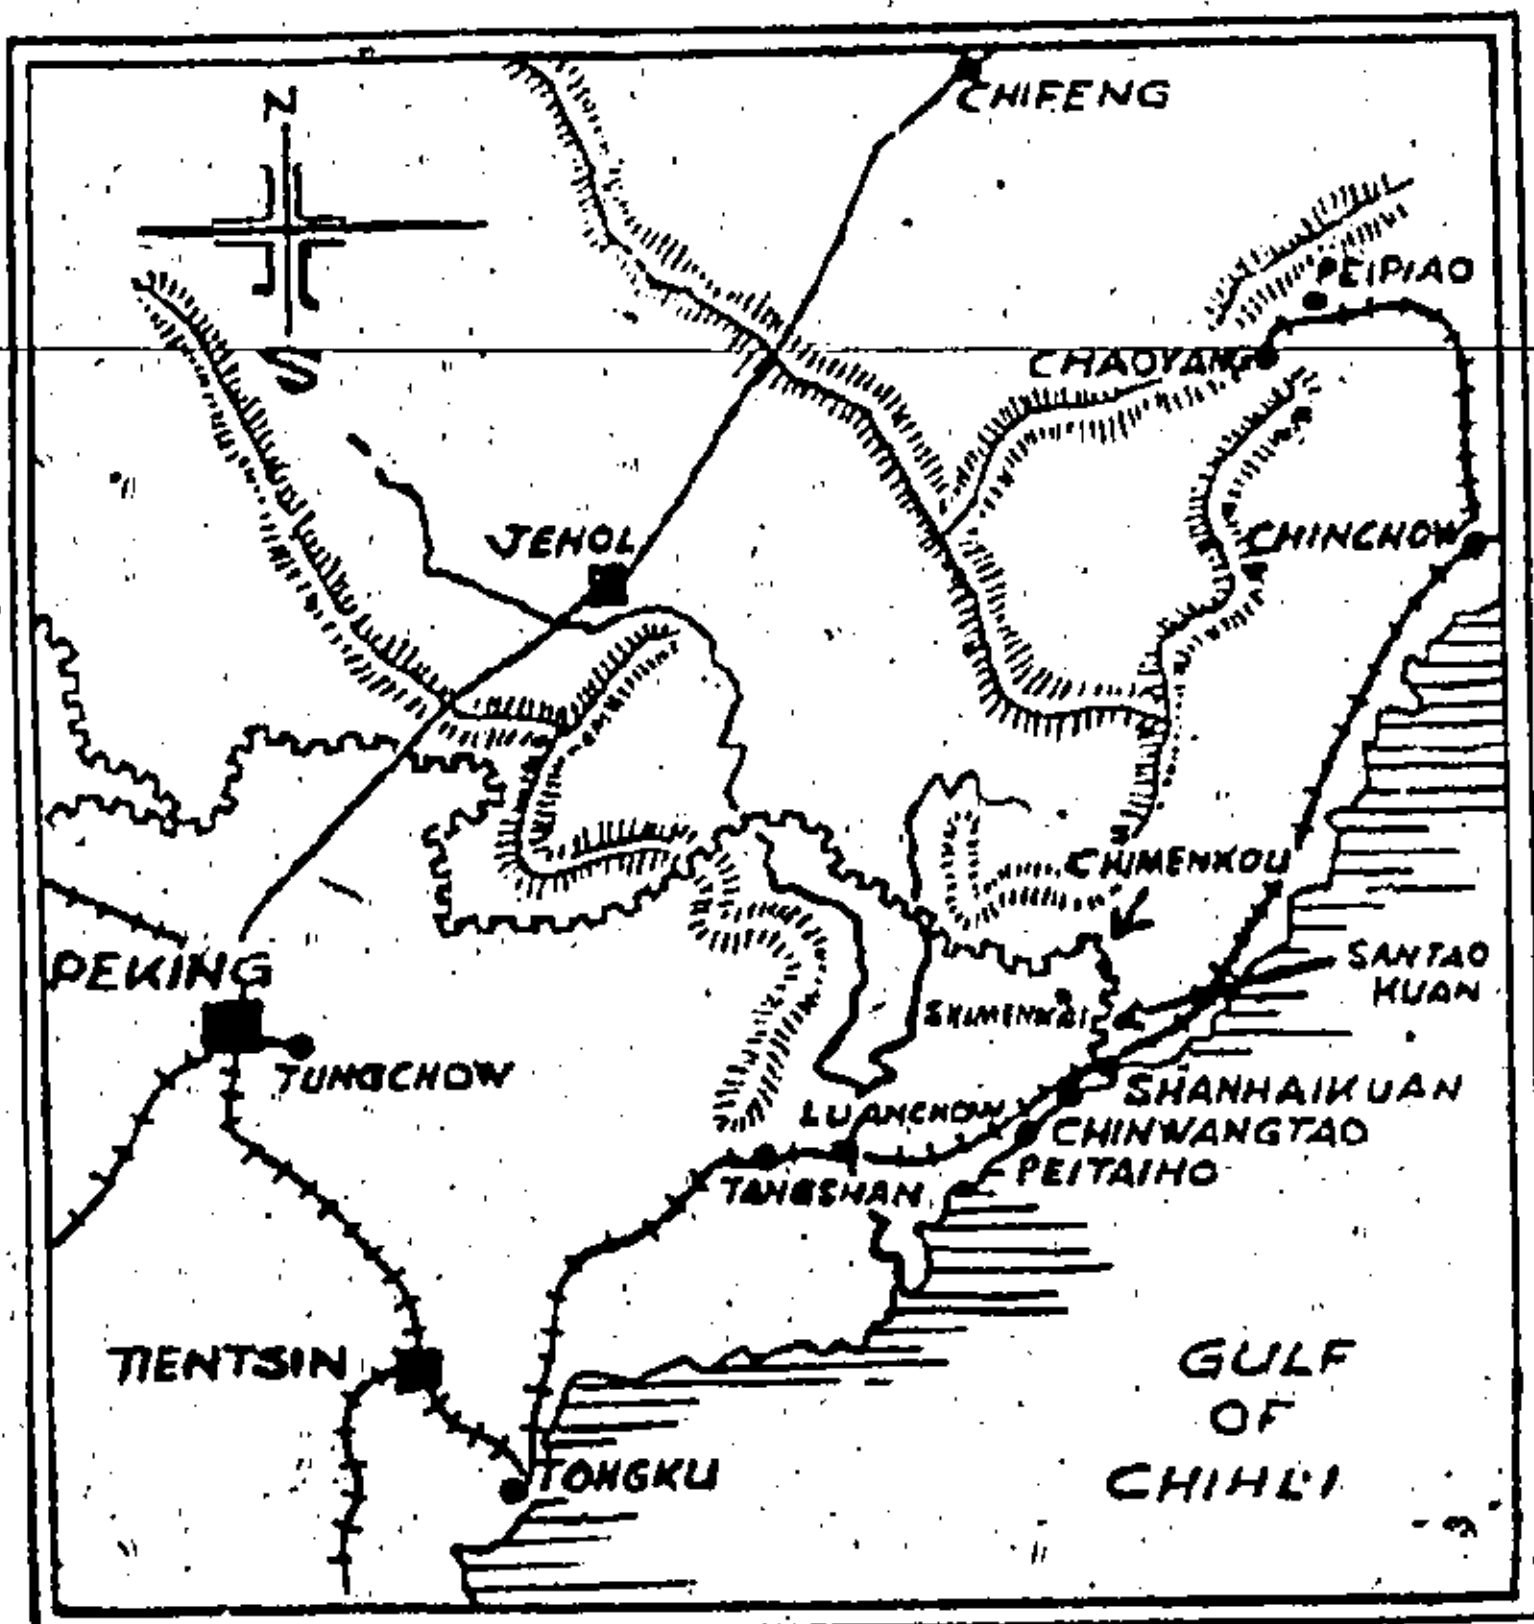

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

GENEVA, January 18. THE Japanese reply to the draft proposals of the Committee of Nineteen was presented today. The reply refuses to admit discussion of the Manchukuo regime also the participation of non-members of the League in the conciliation procedure. It is believed that the Committee of Nineteen will abandon conciliation. This means the Assembly must draft a report, probably endorsing the Lytton Report recommendations.

CHINA WILL REMAIN FIRM AND RESOLUTE

NANKING, Jan. 18. "Should the League of Nations attempt to impose on China what she can not accept, the Chinese delegates to Geneva will certainly be instructed to remain firm and resolute," declared Dr. Lo Wen Kan, the Chinese Foreign Minister, in an interview last night concerning the proceedings of the Committee of Nineteen. The Foreign Minister expressed disappointment over the weakness and procrastination of the Committee of Nineteen. He said: "The Japanese are taking advantage of the adjournment of the League and attacked Shanghai and Chienmenkou in preparation for the invasion of Jehol. Their

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter with regard to the amendment contained in the Memorandum you addressed to the Secretariat. I have duly drawn the attention of the Committee of Nineteen to the very great importance your Government attaches thereto. With reference to the second part of your letter, I have the honour to enclose a copy of the communiqué drawn up after the close of the meeting of the Committee of Nineteen, which accurately summarizes the situation with regard to the proposals submitted to the Committee of Nineteen."

warlike activities simultaneously threatened the peace of the Peiping-Tientsin area. Viewing this aggressive line of action, it would seem that the League should have admitted forthwith the impossibility of conciliation and should have proceeded with the adoption of some effective and decisive measures to check the progress of Japanese violence. Unfortunately, however, the League did not only fail to take this logical step, but actually revised and emasculated, without consulting the Chinese delegation, the draft resolution adopted last December in order to satisfy the Japanese, as if the resolutions, once agreed to by the Japanese, will be accepted by the Chinese Government as a matter of course. "The Chinese Government strongly believes that the League will not act in such a way as to ignore its position as the instrument of world peace and will abandon itself to the wishes of the aggressor."

ELVENTH HOUR EFFORTS

GENEVA, Jan. 18. Eleventh hour efforts to resuscitate the dying embryo of conciliation are denoted by the innumerable comings and goings the whole evening of Sir John Simon, Dr. W. W. Yen, Dr. Yano, Atsuko, Sir Eric Drummond and others.

Many rumours are in circulation, but the delegates are very reticent, refusing to give the slightest hint as to the nature of the conversations, evidently being determined not to jeopardize the flimsy chances of success on Wednesday by premature publicity.

M. HYMAN'S REPLY

GENEVA, Jan. 18. The following is the text of M. Hyman's letter in reply to Dr. W. W. Yen's communication dated January 10:

The text of the invitation, which is in English, follows:—"On behalf of the National Central University I extend a most cordial welcome to our beloved genius of historic art, prophet of modern age and champion of lofty ideals of humanity in the person of G. Bernard Shaw. INDEPENDENCE OF THE PHILIPPINES

SENATE PASSES BILL BY 66 VOTES TO 27

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. THE Senate overrode President Hoover's veto on the Philippine Independence Bill, by 66 votes to 27. The Bill now becomes law and the complete independence of the Philippines will be achieved in 10 to 13 years, provided the Philippine Legislature accepts the Bill within a year. If they do not, the whole problem will be rethrown into the melting pot.

The passage of the Bill is a victory for American agriculturists, especially the sugar interests who are most jealous of Philippine competition. The Philippine House of Representatives, at an informal session on January 16, voted not to accept the Independence Bill, even if it passes the United States Senate, over Mr. Hoover's veto. The local Senate is expected to vote similarly.

OUR LONDON AIR-MAIL LETTER

The Poet Laureate: Queen's College Legend: Mr. J. M. Blackham: Hunting in Palestine: Brown of Tientsin: A Veteran Singer: 43 Years' Soldiering in India.

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, Jan. 18.

When the B.B.C. voice announced "His Majesty the King on Christmas Day it does not need a very vivid imagination to picture the hush that fell on the larger part of the peoples of the world. Thousands upon thousands of people must have been listening to the King's voice for the first time and all must have been affected by the note of fatherly affection which rang through every word of the historic utterance. Nothing could have been more simple or sincere than the concluding words "God bless you."

The Poet Laureate.

Mr. John Masefield, the Poet Laureate, left England on December 29 for a lecture tour in the United States and Canada, which will include visits to New York, Chicago and Montreal. He will return to England in March.

Queen's College, Oxford.

On one of the nights this week, guests at the high table at Queen's College, Oxford, will see the Boar's Head brought in with full ritual on a great silver dish. It will be preceded by the choir, singing a Latin canticle, the same that has been sung at this feast for centuries. The connection of the Boar's Head with Queen's is traditionally explained by the legend that a scholar of the college was once attacked by a wild boar on Shotover Hill. He killed the beast by ramming a book of Aristotle down its throat, with the words "Take that! It is Greek."

Mr. J. M. Blackham.

With the death of Mr. J. M. Blackham, announced on December 27, Cricket has lost the last of its great triumvirate. Grace and Spofforth are the legendary heroes of batsmen and bowlers. Future great cricket-keepers will always be compared with Blackham. Blackham, who in spite of his wonderful record, was an exceedingly modest man, played in the first match on equal terms between England and Australia—which actually was the first Test match. This was at Melbourne in March, 1877. On the third day it was all over, Australia winning by 45 runs. On the Australian side, Bannerman was top scorer with 143, the next highest in the two innings was 20, Blackham made 17, caught 2, stumped 1 and allowed only 6 extras in the two innings. Blackham was also a member of the first Australian team which ever visited England. He was second in the batting averages and took part in the most sensational match in cricket history, when the Australians defeated a strong M.C.C. side, captained by "W.G." in one day. It was this match which inspired the first poem devoted by Punch to Anglo-Australian cricket.

The Australians came down like a wolf on the fold, The Marylebone cracks for a trifle were bowled; Our Grace before dinner was very soon done. And our Grace after dinner did not get a run.

Hunting in Palestine. The formation of a pack of English foxhounds to hunt jackal in Palestine, by officers of the Transjordan Frontier Force is another example of the persistence with which hunting is carried on by Englishmen in the most unlikely places under extremely difficult conditions. For the present season, Bailey's hunting directory records that, owing to special circumstances, the Peiping and Shanghai packs, having dispersed their hounds, leaving the Fanning (Hong Kong) hunt the only representative of the hunting in the East. Some hunts in distant stations have had a long history. Hounds had been kept in Shanghai since 1874. The Peabury Vale Hunt was established in 1868. Lord Melchott, chairman of Imperial Chemicals, has promised his support to 160 per cent. Chemicals.

Brown of Tientsin.

The Rev. Frederick Brown, who sailed as a missionary for China, exactly fifty years ago this week, was known throughout North China as "Mr. Brown," who had been in China eighteen years when he was first mentioned in The Times. He was the first foreigner to escape from Peiping before the siege began. On the arrival of Sir Alfred Gaselee, with the British Expeditionary Force, he was commandeered for service. It was only on the outbreak of the Great War that he returned to England.

A Veteran Singer.

Mr. Ben Davies, who will celebrate his 75th birthday next month, declares that he has never ceased to keep his voice in daily training, although he does not make frequent appearances on the concert platform. It is unusual for a tenor to retain in so marked a degree the vocal quality that distinguished Mr. Davies in his earlier years, but he explains that he has taken care of his voice, and unlike many other singers, has avoided overstrain. Mr. Davies enjoys good health, and often plays two rounds of golf a day.

The Duke of Gloucester.

The Duke of Gloucester leaves this week for the Sudan, accompanied by the big game hunter, Capt. E. W. Brook, who was with him in 1930 and also on other hunting expeditions. Amongst his purchases on his last day in London were many hundred feet of cinematograph film.

43 Years' Soldiering in India.

The retirement of General Sir John S. M. Shea from the Indian Army was gazetted on December 29. On March 31 last when Sir John relinquished the appointment of General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Eastern Command (Indian Army) he completed a career of 43 years' service in India, from subaltern to Commander-in-Chief. He served with the Chitral relief force, in the South African War and in

STAMP CORNER

MANY NEW ISSUES IN 1932

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, Jan. 18.

Stamps of the year.—Many commemorative issues. Some 1,700 new stamps from all over the world which have been issued in 1932 is a large addition to the album pages of the philatelist, and he who has been fortunate enough to acquire all of them will certainly have a lot to show for his outlay.

An outstanding feature has been the appearance of many British colonial commemorative issues which afford fine examples of the engraver's art, and have added many recruits to the ever growing army of stamp enthusiasts. Canada's special issue for the Ottawa Conference has been one of the most popular of the year, as have those centenary issues of Antigua, British Guiana, Montserrat, etc., and the latest arrivals from the Cayman Islands, which show portraits of William IV. and George V. Newfoundland's recent issues with values depicting the Duchess of York and Princess Elizabeth have proved to be "best-sellers" in the philatelic market, resulting in almost a "boom" in the more modern issues of our oldest colony.

The collecting of Air Mail stamps has advanced from being a sideline to an importance undreamed of, and the announcement of "Air" new flights results in the demand for airmail stamps as souvenirs of the occasion. It seems strange that Great Britain should lag so far behind in the issuing of special stamps for air mail, while her Dominions seek every opportunity for producing these interesting reminders of aerial progress. We were the first country in the world to issue postage stamps, but it seems as if we may be the last to issue them for the air post.

"ARE GAMBLING AND SOUND ECONOMICS INCOMPATIBLE?"

LIVELY DEBATE AT SAILORS' & SOLDIERS' HOME

GAMBLING: A WASTE OF MONEY?

"Are Gambling and Sound Economics Incompatible" formed the subject of a lively and interesting debate at the Sailors and Soldiers' Home last evening.

Dr. E. L. Allen and the Rev. J. Courtenay proposed the motion, and Mr. G. Merriman and Mr. J. H. Gelling were for the opposition. Mr. E. Rice was in the Chair.

In the course of the debate, horse racing, speculation, and insurance, etc., were discussed, after which the motion was put forward to the "floor," and was defeated by 13 votes to 25.

MOTION DEFEATED

Dr. Allen, in putting forward the motion said that he was not going against gambling in general, but speculation, which, he considered, was most serious and harmful as it was mainly responsible for the present world depression.

During the Great War, he said, many people speculated on the German currency, and the money they lost was so much that it was almost equivalent to the amount that Germany was later called upon to pay for her reparations.

Dr. Allen then went on to say that gambling was also a waste of money. Any person who won money through gambling always spent it recklessly. He then quoted an instance during the Great War in which a corporal after winning 125 francs from his friends, could not find a way to spend all the money. Though not a drinker, he bought a bottle of champagne and poured the contents on the ground, and later brought all the eggs in the farm and threw them away.

In replying to Dr. Allen, Mr. G. Merriman, for the opposition said:—"I think you will agree with me that nothing of what the Hon. proposer of the motion has told us, has shown any connection between Gambling and sound Economics."

Mr. Merriman said in part:—Gambling must be considered in its broadest sense. Gambling is defined as risking to chance anything which we have in order to gain something in the future.

The proposer of the motion is not only a gambler, but he teaches gambling to his friends. He teaches us that out of the many excellent creeds and religions in the world to-day, we should invest our faith in his creed and thus gain something in the future. If we are going to gain by so doing he is not entirely sure, he is just anticipating speculating and having faith.

And now Economics, what exactly is it? Well, it has been defined for us by Mr. Henry Clay, Manchester Professor of Economics, who says that it is The Study of Business in its Social Aspect.

One cannot talk of an individual being of a sound economic condition, for economics as a study is applied to society and one person cannot be society. To illustrate what I mean let us take any business transaction. The individual who is concerned in it is interested in its private aspect. Economics is concerned with its Social Aspect which may be something entirely different.

Sound Economics has nothing to do with pots of money, but only with the social effect of business, and if I were asked to define sound economics I should say that it was a prosperous social state brought about by successful and high-minded business.

Let us look for a moment into the things which conduce to economic soundness. A country is not economically sound unless she is productive. She is not economically sound if her average people are not properly cared for, fed and clothed, or, what is also very important if they are poorly educated and of low spirit.

The Stock Exchange. The Stock Exchange, the greatest gambling in the world. Here we find men—good men too they are—though few of us realize it—who spend their working time gambling with stocks and shares. Has it never occurred to you that if the Government liked to impose a gambling tax on the stock exchange operatives that the state could raise quite a large revenue from it? Why then do they not impose it?

The answer is—because the government knows quite well that these men and their gambling are necessary if the country is to be economically sound. High price fluctuations in the common market bring in their wake lack of trade and lack of trade is a bad thing for the average people of a country. The Stock Exchange Gamblers in their unceasing efforts to anticipate a change in prices, have the effect of steadying prices in the common market and in promoting steadiness in trade.

I think, the most important feature of gambling and its effect on the social aspect of business—is The Gambling Spirit.

I said in the beginning that the proposer of the motion was a gambler! So, I'm afraid, are you and I. We may not gamble with actual money but we often gamble with our health, our happiness, and sometimes with our lives.

What man is worth his salt who is afraid to gamble with something or other? Men jumping into rivers to save drowning people make a glorious gamble—and when they succeed as they speculated they would—we call them good fellows. And if they fail—Do we call them fools? No, we just say we are sorry—because he or she was a good gambler, but lost.

How can we have economic soundness if we are afraid to speculate upon the worlds markets and afraid to lose the little money we have? How can we have economic soundness if our manhood is afraid to gamble?

I say, most emphatically, ladies and gentlemen, that gambling and sound economics are compatible—that further, without gambling and its splendid spirit, economic soundness would be absolutely impossible.

The Rev. Jacobs and Mr. Gelling then spoke support of their leaders, after which the motion was put forward to the "floor," and, as stated, was defeated.

SWATOW NOTES

Grand Theatre Opened

ROUNDING THE "REDS" AGAIN

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Swatow, Jan. 11.

The foreign new year was enthusiastically celebrated by the Chinese. Fire-crackers were much in evidence, and so was "joy-riding." All government offices were closed for three days, during which period buildings were decorated and illuminated at night, while officials and large numbers of the general public were seen going round wishing a Happy New Year to their friends, all of which indicated a desire to follow the western custom.

The Custom House was closed for five days in order to make up for the non-closing at Chinese New Year. The schools were also closed for three days, as were the department stores and shops.

A New Theatre.

The Grand Theatre was formally opened on New Year's Day. It is a fairly big theatre, but smaller than the larger picture-houses of Hong Kong. Built in the heart of the town, the house has already enjoyed much popularity. "Humanity" (Chinese picture), the first film exhibited, brought in a full house at every performance. We have just been given a real treat at this theatre when "One Hour With You" was screened. Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald are great favourites with the Chinese, who demand more pictures by these two stars.

The "Reds."

Recently there has been another serious drive in the city to round up "Reds" and suspects, as a result of which about a score of people have been arrested and a few executed. One night martial law came into effect without warning, and after searching some boarding-houses many "Reds" were brought to book. Amongst those caught were eight young women, who declared they were forced to join the movement. They were promised a reprieve if they would publicly condemn the "Red" menace, and on accepting the offer, they were escorted to various public places where they made speeches denouncing the movement.

Shanghai Reactions.

The Shanghai incident has roused much indignation here, but no anti-Japanese demonstrations have taken place, nor do I think they will be tolerated by the authorities. At present there is no Japanese warship in port which lessens the chance of active manifestations of ill-feeling.

The Money Market.

Money is very tight these days, interest being charged at 18 per cent per day. Already two native banks have closed their doors, with liabilities in excess of assets. With China New Year more bank ruptures are fully expected.

EVERYMAN'S PSYCHOLOGY

I. "THE PROPER STUDY OF MANKIND IS MAN"

(BY FATHER G. BYRNE S. J.)

Yet man seems very elusive when the study-detectives get on his track: they call themselves Psychologists. When they have run him to earth, many of them try to imprison him and his activities in his own brain cells. He becomes baffling. He must be forced to give an account of himself. Experts are summoned. Memory tests, intelligence tests, neural mechanism of his sensory impulses... never was prisoner in the dock so harassed and questioned, still no jury could be found to agree on the verdict. What could the judge do with this rebel of waking hours if not catch him in his sleeping hours, so the orthodox psychologists were asked to retire that the Psychoanalysts might deal with him in dreamland. These facts may help to explain why everybody has heard of the "New Psychology," and why, in the very way of putting sugar into our tea, we betray superiority or inferiority complexes! It is only natural to ask what it all means. And people are asking. There are no end of answers to the questions asked: never were so many books written on the mind and how to use it; on the memory and how to lose it; on the will and how to abuse it. But many of the books are disconcerting. Even though the writers may start familiarly in your own garden-plot, they seem to love the jungle where readers get lost in a perfect undergrowth of strange words.

I may illustrate by a simple experiment of a modern psychologist—his name fits in with our imagery. Mr. Thorndike! Animals remember and we remember, but the animal has a much smaller memo-book; so it looked simple to explore the animal's little book and see if any leaf from it would fit into man's. Mr. Thorndike shut up some poor break-fastless, tininess cats in a cage. Outside the cage was an appetizing dinner: between pussy and the dinner there was only one step—a string to be pulled, or a button to be turned, and the door flew open. In many cases by happy accident the cat did stumble on the "open sesame." Further experiments proved that the happy accident was helpful for future efforts, and that gradually the trick was learnt. Now most readers would not worry about pursuing the question further. They would be satisfied with a general idea of a sense of observation developed, as a dog connects the sense of pain with the appearance of the whip. But the psychologist does not stop there. He wants to know what takes place in animal's brain to establish this connection. If he belongs to the "Modern School" he gives you the results of his conclusions thus: (I quote from Sir Percy Nunn's little book on the Data of Education) "We must suppose that the animal's success tended to consolidate the mnemonic basis of its movements into a definite complex from which the engrams connected with irrelevant actions were excluded. This is to say, successful self-assertion, in animals as in men, tends to modify its mnemonic basis in a direction favourable to still more secure and facile expression."

Perhaps the reader knows the Lipping Numbers of F. W. Harvey:

"I met a little fairy
In a dairy, by a pan:
And wasn't he the fondest
The weeniest little man!
And when I dipped my fingers
In the cream he couldn't view,
O he stamped and screamed and—
—well,

Wouldn't you? Wouldn't you?"

The lines express not too badly the mind of a would-be reader of psychology who wants to know what happened to the cat, or rather in the cat, and who, for only answer, sees the psychologist dip his fingers into a creamy pile of engrams which he suitably extracts from the complex which the reader's teeny stature will not let him view. Now must it be so? Surely not. However much a special jargon may help the jargonists, it ought to be possible to use plain English about the ordinary workings of the mind of man, of his memory, of his will. If the "proper study of mankind be man," it ought not to be necessary to hunt for man in a forest of phrases. And it is not. It will be the object of the present writer to try to examine in a simple way many of the wonderful things which go to make up man's wonderful life. We are accustomed now to the gramophone but when Edison first stumbled on his sound-repeating disk everyone was amazed. One disk, one tune! Surely man's memory disk with its endless tunes is more wonderful still. Have we stopped to think of it?
